Living at Bailey Hall seems to detach those that go there from the rest of the University of Minnesota. It would be nice if there was more of an incentive to be there.

This hasn't been the best experience of my life!

From my point of view, Welcome Week did not accomplish what it was supposed to because we were doing way too much, way too often, and all of us were too worn out to comprehend what we were being told. It would be more helpful to have lots of optional activities the first week, or maybe a certain number of activities we have to go to total, because we had no time to meet people or explore on our own, which is what we all wanted to do more than anything.

The boo Outliers, required reading for CBS students is,at least for me, very depressing.

This hasn’t been that large of a lifestyle change...

I hate calc.

Welcome week needs to be more relaxed

Nothing

University of MN is pretty bomb

Welcome week did not help the adjustment coming into college, it was too much.

So far the U is great!

meh.

Very good!

Many students felt threatened to be involved with welcome week which diminished the positive overall feeling towards the activities. My group leaders were constantly confused and bickering over who knew what our group was to be doing.

None.

Welcome Week was an entertaining experience.

No

none

N/A

Living in St. Paul has been tough given that I have all classes in only Minneapolis.
